recordings on Moodle

- Careers using your research skills
- Careers for scientists ('hard' science background, rather than social science)
- Careers in Public Health in the UK
- Getting in to Management Consultancy

So, what different ground should we cover today?

Aim: to develop your knowledge of potential jobs you could move on to after your master's course at LSHTM

Objectives: By the end of the session you will be able to

- Identify jobs which build on your previous experience and current studies
- Analyse job descriptions and requirements
- Select options to investigate further

As revealed at open day...

So many ways to categorise

Or by type of work

Introduction by Greg Martin

We talk about Global and Public Health – what's the difference (if any)?

Careers in Public Health (on our Moodle page)

Areas of public health

Curating your own list

Ideas of job titles?

Examples

Sift examples given according to group interests/experience levels/disciplines eg

Epi/statistical/data heavy jobs

Require clinical background

UK jobs/non-UK jobs

Academic (eg research assistant/associate/fellow)

NGO/not for profit

Industry/consultancy/pharma

Early career/experienced

Examples of interest?

What is missing?

Jobs you hoped to see there.

Timing for job hunt

Securing advertised opportunity – usually start work around 2 months after deadline (or more)

Time waiting for suitable advertised opportunities

Time taken on unsuccessful applications...

Unadvertised jobs – initial approaches, conversations, waiting for opportunity

Some annual cycles of recruitment (Autumn-Winter)

Definitely start (or increase) exploring now

Self-evaluation

Ready to reflect on
own skills,
strengths,
priorities?

Ready to discuss and refine ideas?

Ready to research jobs?

Ready to apply?
